

John Reynolds Sustainability Symposium

May 16-17, 2015

Inspiring Excellence in Sustainability and Design

This inaugural event will bring internationally renowned practitioners, researchers, and thought-leaders to campus for lectures, panel discussions, networking, and sharing. The symposium will attract, inform, and inspire professionals, faculty members, students, alumni, and friends as they interact with individuals on the leading edge of sustainable design, policy, teaching, and research.

This symposium will honor Professor Emeritus John Reynolds' decades of contributions to sustainable design and energy policy. Proceeds from the symposium will help support the John S. Reynolds Architecture Symposium Fund established at the University of Oregon Foundation. The fund will support symposia that focus on issues, problems, advances, technologies, practices, and other topics that pertain to sustainability in architecture teaching, research, practice, policy, and community activity. Please join us in making this day a special tribute to John and for the lasting benefit of the Department of Architecture.

<http://architecture.uoregon.edu/events/sustainability-symposium>