Architectural Types

Arch 458/558

Human reasons and spatial configuration as criteria for categorizing architectural form, from elements to buildings and cities

Architectural Types as Formal Models
Architectural Types as Essential Human Reasons
Architectural Types Below the Scale of Buildings
The Dwelling and the Temple
The Market and the Shop
The Assembly and the Theatre
The Hospice and the Hotel
The Library and the Gallery
The College and the School
Landscape and Urban Types
Mixed and Hybrid Building Types
Type/Language Analogies

The Theatre Building Type According to J.N.L. Dusaned

Thursdays, 5-8 pm, 3 CR
Kevin Nute, knute@uoregon.edu