Creating sustainable structures requires visualizing unseen forces such as light and heat. This workshop will explore workflows that harness analytic tools to examine environmental data and the flexibility of visual programming to enable students to translate environmental data into meaningful and performance oriented design responses. The lecture/lab workshop will use Rhinoceros + Grasshopper + DIVA software.